Chamber finalizes extravaganza plans

Elk Point Chamber of Commerce worked out the final details of next Friday's Christmas Extravaganza at their December 6th meeting, with again a good number of retail businesspersons on hand to help with the planning.

The Extravaganza has met with good response from the business community, with almost 30 businesses booked to take part in the Extravaganza Bingo and the Shopping Spree contests, and a number of others making a cash donation toward the prizes.

Prizes for the Bingo portion were debated, and revamped. Instead of a single merchandise prize, the Chamber agreed to return to the use of "Elk Point Bucks" for prizes with $300, $200, and $100 in currency redeemable at the participating businesses before a February 28, 1990 deadline.

Forms for the Bingo and the Shopping Spree, along with rules, will be distributed to the participating business and can be picked up from these locations by the public as of 9:00 a.m. on Friday morning. However, shoppers must wait until 7:00 p.m. to deposit their completed forms at the draw location, which will be a table set up on Main Street, near the bonfire.

The other Extravaganza activities will get underway earlier than in previous years, with Main Street closed off from 50 Avenue to the alley next to Stedmans, and 49th Avenue closed from the Co-op parking lot entrance west to the alley behind Capitol Drugs, from 3:30 p.m. until midnight, pending Town approval. Sleigh rides are scheduled to get underway at approximately 4:00 p.m. and will continue into the evening. Santa Claus will be in attendance from 5:00 to 7:00 p.m., and entertainment will start at 8:00 p.m. Among the groups taking part will be the United Church Choir and the Elk Point Junior Drama Club. Kluchy to address PTA

Ken Kluchky from Alberta Education will be the featured speaker at the upcoming PTA meeting on Wednesday, December 13 at 7:00 p.m. in the F.G. Miller Cafeteria.

Kluchky will discuss the pros and cons of the proposed Science

10, 20 and 30 program for Alberta Schools. This meeting will provide parents with direct information regarding the curriculum changes that go with the implementation of the new Science Program.

All interested parents are encouraged to attend this meeting.

Santa's Helpers...

Students at Elk Point Elementary School presented a heaping hamper of groceries and gifts, along with a cheque for $115 from the school's hot food sales, to Santa's Anonymous representative Terry Hebblethwaite. Grade 1 students Lindsay Klein, Glen Kulczycki and Melanie Johnson made the presentation on behalf of the school.

Town rezoning for Major development

The first step toward a major development for Elk Point was given Town Council's approval at Monday night's meeting, with first reading given to Bylaw 500/89, providing for rezoning 30 acres of land in Alberta Mortgage and Housing's North Sub-division from Urban Reserve to Direct Control District, for development of an agricultural pavilion and recreational use area.

Elk Point Agricultural Society President Glen Harms termed the approval "the beginning of a very worthwhile project for the community" and assured Town Council that the proposed development would be "in a park-like style, very pleasing to the eye."

Events such as 4-H meetings and achievement days, horse shows and gymkhanas could be held in the facility, Ag Society

Director Charlene Baker told Council.

Harms added that agriculturally oriented events of this sort would bring a number of participants and spectators into Elk Point, with direct benefit to local businesses. He noted that the horse shows staged by the Ag Society at Stony Lake during the summers of 1988 and 1989 were among the largest in northeast Alberta, but that many of the people attending the events did not go through Elk Point to get there, and that many local residents may not have even been aware the shows were taking place.

Other events, such as a high school rodeo, and chariot races, are also being planned for the future.

An information meeting, to precede the Public Hearing on the rezoning bylaw, is planned for Thursday, January 4, 1990 at 7:00 p.m. in the Elk Point Public Library. At this time, members of the Agricultural Society will be on hand to answer questions from the public and to display the plans for their project.

Mayor Bruce Kleeberger said that Council is committed to the project, and noted that the DC1 zoning gives the Town firm control of the development, with each phase requiring Town approval before it goes ahead.

Town rezoning for development

Council dealt with a packed agenda at the lengthy meeting, agreeing to advertise for members needed on the Buckingham House Management Board, Municipal Airport Commission and Municipal Library Board. Present members whose terms expire at the end of this year will be invited by letter to reapply if they wish to do so.

Municipal staff salaries were discussed, with a 3 percent cost of living allowance and equity merit adjustment approved. Salary for the new Community Services Director was determined.

A leave of absence for medical reasons was approved for Sonia Yarmuch. Diane Young will be employed as receptionist/typist/file clerk during Mrs. Yarmuch's absence.

Restructuring of staff positions in the Public Works department was agreed to, with the new titles of Maintenance Operator I and II adopted as more suitable to the positions they refer to. Emil Mudryk will be offered the position of Operator II, and Robert Bepalko the position of Operator I, as of January 1, 1990.

A service award program for employees having been in the Town's employ for five or more years, and increments of five years thereafter, was approved.

Maintenance requirements for the water treatment plant were again discussed, with the only permanent solution felt to be a new source of water. The plastic liner discussed at last meeting has been determined to have a seven year guarantee on material. Town employees will go ahead with the installation of PVC pipe to replace iron pipe damaged by corrosion.

The Town will give a formal presentation to the Northeast Library Project Interim Board in mid-January. The Board has decided to scrap the short list of towns being considered for the Northern Lights Library System Headquarters and to hear proposals from all the original applicants who wish to make another attempt.

Win, tie for Elks

Elk Point Elks senior hockey club made an impressive debut in the first two home games of the Sask-Alta League season this weekend, with a 6-6 tie against Paradise Valley Jets on Friday.

The first period of Friday's contest saw the score seesaw to a 2-2 mark, with Murray Cochrane scoring a pair, assisted by Alain Leclerc and Jim Vinge, in answer to two Jets goals. Vinge scored early in the second period, assisted by Kerry Loughran and Jeff Buck, to bring the Elks into the lead, with Richard Marcoux scoring off assists by Clayton Cross and Willie Lesyk just 40 seconds later for a two point margin. Two fast Paradise Valley goals, one a power play, tied the game once again. The Elks regained their lead with 5:15 to go in the period, with a second goal by Vinge, assisted by Cochrane and Kerry Loughran.

The third period remained scoreless for almost 10 minutes, when Paradise Valley scored to again tie the game. Their sixth goal, just over three minutes later, put them in the lead briefly, until a slow shot by Willie Lesyk trickled down the Jets' goaltender's arm and into the net. Despite valiant attempts by both teams, the score remained 6-6, even when the Elks had two men out on penalties.

The five minute overtime period again saw both teams working hard toward a tiebreaking goal, and both goalies doing a very fine job of repelling all scoring attempts, resulting in a 6-6 final score.

Sunday's game started off unapologetically for the Elks, with Neilburg Monarchs scoring three goals in 47 seconds near the end of the first period, ending a 16 minute scoring drought in the very fast paced game.

Neilburg held their 3-0 lead through the first half of the second period. Then, however, the Elks found their way into the opposing net and did not let up for six unanswered goals through the balance of the period. These included a hat trick by Jim Vinge, along with singles by Kerry Loughran, Alain Leclerc and Richard Marcoux. Assists during the onslaught included five for Terry Wozniak, and one each for Vinge, Kerry Loughran, Chester Richard, Willie Lesyk, Cochrane and Jeff Buck.

The third period again saw numerous attempts and no goals until near the mid point. Cochrane, unassisted, scored for the Elks while three players from each team watched from the penalty box, and Leclerc added another Elks goal, off assists by Richard and Clayton Cross before the teams were back at full strength. After one more Neilburg goal with 4:49 remaining, the Elks fired two more parting shots into the visitors' goal, with Cochrane and Marcoux scoring off assists by Kerry Loughran, Lorn Berg and Buck.

The high scoring win gave Jim Vinge a bonus of 30 litres of complimentary gasoline from Hillside Texaco for his hat trick, and Terry Wozniak 30 litres of gasoline from Vogel's UFA for four or more assists in a home game.

Several hockey fans were also lucky winners. Mary Kinjerski and Charles Quinney were the cash winners in the 50-50 draws, while Maria Reed of Paradise Valley and Rodney Pacholek won $25 grocery vouchers from Co-op, Sharon Kuhn and Maureen Fedorus won pizzas from Dave's Pizza, Judy Scott and Christine Wozniak won video and machine rentals from Video Point, and Vince and Joanne Wozniak won gift vouchers from Country Bulk Foods.

Elk Point Truss was Friday's game sponsor, while Sunday's game was sponsored by E-Can Oilfield Services.

The Elks' next game is Friday night in Elk Point, when they take on Kitscoty in an 8:30 p.m. contest.

Versatile Author...

Popular youth fiction author Martyn Godfrey charmed Grade 4 to 6 students with his adventures in the art of writing.

Martyn Godfrey visits the elementary school

Young people's author Martyn Godfrey, who has written over 20 books for elementary aged students, paid a visit to Elk Point Elementary School last Thursday, and was given a warm welcome by the Grade 4, 5 and 6 students who crammed the Music Room for two unforgettable sessions.

'I almost laughed myself to death,' one student said, still giggling as he headed back to class.

The gangly, mustached author drew instant rapport from the students as he told them how he came to write his first book. A rather slow Grade 6 student in the school where he taught 10 years ago was fascinated with outer space and alien movies, and asked him if there were any books about outer space. A search of the school library showed nothing of the sort, but Godfrey hated to discourage the student, who he said, 'hadn't read a thing all year.' When the boy suggested Godfrey could write such a story for him while the students were writing stories in their once-weekly double period, he did so.

The seven pencilled foolscap pages were just what the student was looking for. So much so, in fact, that when the class got their monthly catalogues from the Scholastic Tab publishing house, the boy suggested Godfrey should send them the story 'so they can make a book out of it.' Godfrey said he would, if the student would send along a letter telling the publishers why he thought it would make a good book.

Amazingly enough, the story came back with letters for both Godfrey and the boy, thanking them for the submission and asking Godfrey for the rest of the story! When a phone call confirmed this was actually true, Godfrey asked his class for suggestions on how to stretch the story to book length. With the help of the school secretary (Godfrey could not type), 'The Vandarian Incident' was off to press six weeks later.

Godfrey's first novel, telling the story of a boy and girl who go to school on another planet, until aliens blow up the school, has been reprinted 5 times, and translated to several other languages.

His second book, and his third, and his fourth (all entitled 'Alien War Games'-he 'liked the title) found little favor with the publisher. However, he rewrote the fourth, and 'Alien War Games' finally reached the eager young readers.

After that, Godfrey gave writing a rest until he moved to Edson, Alberta and was inspired by students who displayed their BMX biking skills on a field just outside his classroom window. This led to the first of his three 'Ms Teeny Wonderful' books, which were an instant success.

Since then, Godfrey has written about experiences ranging from meeting a bear on his first moose hunting expedition, to his childhood hockey games, as well as imaginative and fast paced pre-teen novels on other subjects such as sasquatches, baseball, monsters-even the night shift at a convenience store. All have been received with enthusiasm, making Godfrey one of the most popular writers for that age group today.

He certainly proved to be just as entertaining in person-just ask any of the students who flocked around after each session with money in hand to purchase one of his books as a souvenir of the special day when Martyn Godfrey came to Elk Point Elementary.

Children are welcome to come and see Santa.

In Our View

Beginning to look a lot like Christmas

Maybe it's the thick coat of frosty white snow, or maybe it's the decorations in every store, or maybe it's the streets of brightly lighted homes that gleam through the early darkness. Whatever it is, Elk Point is certainly getting a Christmassy look these days.

The chubby gent in the red suit has been seen on several occasions, and his helpers from Santas Anonymous have been observed loading up box after box of donations from the various depots. Fresh green trees virtually surrounded the Scout Hall on Saturday, when their annual tree sale got underway, making it seem like a nice little forest had moved right into town. Downtown is filled with people carrying loads of mysterious parcels, moving from store to store and becoming heavier and heavier laden.

Just twelve days to go - the annual panic is on! Some haven't sent their cards yet, some haven't bought a single present, some haven't baked a single cookie, or hauled the tree out of the basement, or written to Santa.

Somehow, though, in less than two weeks from now, everything will get done, and Christmas will be upon us, with all its joy and splendor. Then we will realize that all the effort was well spent, as we celebrate the season with our families and friends.

Christmas Craftswomen

Evelyn Kowtun's Christmas Crafts session drew a capacity crowd of students to the Further Education Building on December 1, where the ladies learned the intricacies of making a candy-laden wreath, and several other decorative holiday items.

Ruthless Writers

Peggy and the pressure pump hole

Marilyn J. Cochrane

Our home on the farm is a mobile under which is a hole 10' deep by 10' square consisting of rough poured concrete walls and dirt floor. This houses our pressure system.

At the time of this episode, I was working off the farm and wore business clothes, high heels, etc. One of the highlights of my day was being greeted by my dog Peggy on my return home. Peggy was almost at her adult size and weighed approximately fifty pounds.

On this particular day on returning home Peggy didn't greet me. I called from the driveway and heard a half-hearted woof coming from the back of the house. I tottered through the gravel and called again. The answering woof now sounded like it was coming from the other side. Eventually, with me calling and Peggy woofing more and more despairingly, I finally realized she was under the house, far under.

Now, I have always had a vivid and particularly bloody imagination. Instantly, I saw my Peggy with broken ribs and legs, in terror in the dark and darkness.

Throwing all caution and sanity aside I started to the rescue. Did I mention I was wearing high heels and a skirt? I threw myself to the ground and crawled under the deck. Did I mention that I'm deathly afraid of spiders? I crawled under the deck and made my way to the little opening that gave access under the house. It was dark in there, very dark.

I called Peggy and her answering moan propelled me through the opening and into the dark interior. Did I mention that there are salamanders living in the pit?

I made my way to the pit and peered over the side. There she was, my Peggy. I could see the whites of her eyes and the white tip on her tail which was madly wagging. I thought to myself, "If she's wagging her tail she can't be hurt much." Then that imagination took over and said to me, "You've never heard of muscle spasms, eh?"

To continue...In the pit was a wooden ladder which reached up to about two feet from the top. I backed over the pit and carefully reached down to the ladder. My skin was crawling thinking about the slime/spiders/salamanders, as I made my way down into the darkness. I remember thinking, "at least it's not glowing in the dark" (shades of radon).

I reached the bottom of the ladder and stepped into four inches of sludge, disgusting. Peggy bounded all over me, hale and hearty. I hugged her and told her everything was fine now that I was there.

I turned to climb out. Out! How do I get her out? One fifty pound chicken dog and one hundred and ten pound chicken person. Did I mention that I'm afraid of ladders? Ten feet straight up.

Well, I thought, "Time for ladder climbing lessons, Peg." I placed one of her paws on the rung then lifted the other front paw up to the next rung intending to get under her back end and proceed with the back paws. Try it some time. Fifty pounds of quivering wimp dog went limp and fell over. Okay, think! After several false starts, I finally managed to drape Peggy over my forearms and straining every muscle nerve and sinew, to inch up the ladder and eventually, much, much later, to shove her over the rim of the pit.

As Peg and I crawled out from under the house into the light of day, I said to myself, "I did it, I really did it." In the back of my mind I could hear my husband, Bill, quietly saying, "Why didn't you just...."

Learning the fine art of football watching

By Billie Milholland

Football had been in the air for so long that I got tired of being the only one who didn't know a touchdown from a toss-up. To remedy this situation, I watched the Edmonton/Saskatchewan game, then sat through the important parts of the Grey Cup. What a suggestive sport. Talk about mutant ninjas in tights. Big ape shoulders combined with the small, sweetly rounded buttocks of a ballet dancer is the combo for the ideal football physique. I don't know any men who look like that but they are turning them out somewhere because that Domed stadium field was full of them.

I learned a lot of things watching those games. There are four quarters in football, the same as there are in a loonie. They have an intermission half-way through so the players can go to the biff and drink their Gatorade and the fans can go to the biff and get beer.

As far as I can tell, the big, lurching guys are the defenders. The tall, more graceful guys with more ordinary human proportions are the catchers and the runners. Then there is a shorter, thinner guy who is one of a kind. He is the one guy who has more brain than brawn, kind of the football scientist, I guess. The striped guys who talk with their hands are the referees and umpires and such. That's the clear part of the game.

After that, it gets pretty complex. The object of the game appears to be to see how big a pile of bodies can be created. The players make this pile in a variety of ways. Sometimes they simply line up and rush together into a random heap of flailing limbs and bodies. Sometimes they chase after one person, knock him over and pile on top of him. Then, whenever the players succeed in making a pile, everything comes to a halt. Now I know that feet are involved in this game; it says so right in the name - football. And I did see Don Mazankowski in a suit kick this ball. Once the game actually began after hours and hours of foreplay, the players grabbed, threw and carried the ball, but, I saw no feet involved. I am told that the players did actually get to putting foot to ball but that must have happened when I got up to stretch or get more popcorn because I did not actually see it. The scoring, I never did pick up on. It is not simple like in hockey where the little puck gets caught in a net and someone gets a score. In football they get quite a variety of scores before they ever get close to the big tuning fork goal place that they have. Maybe next year I'll catch on. I hope they'll play next year; they broke so many players in that last game that I don't know if they have enough left. Maybe that's how other teams get a turn at the Grey Cup game.

U.C.W. holds Christmas tea and bake sale

By Irene Magnusson

Just in time for the festive season, the United Church Women in Elk Point, on Saturday, November 25th, opened the church hall to an even larger than usual crowd, welcoming all to their Christmas Tea and Sale.

There was plenty to see. At a large table near the door, the United Church people presided over a table laden with Christmas ornamentations, fancy cookies, candies and such, even a guess-the-number candy jar.

On the other hand, a table featuring an elaborate and very fancy 'gingerbread house', created by Billie Milholland, offered to go home with whoever guessed the exact number of cookies and candies used in its construction - for a fee, of course. 'Heritage Books' were also for sale.

As usual, a groaning Home baking table lured the eyes and appetites of all, while across the hall, another long table showed the works of many busy fingers, of novelties, crafts, toys, all the bits and pieces Christmas Bazaars are made of.

Secretary Irene Miller explained that proceeds are used for general upkeep of the Church and hall, remuneration to janitor, kitchen accessories, as well as other missions supported by the United church, such as the Bissell Centre.

Rev. Donaldson opened the event at 2 p.m., with a prayer and asked a blessing on the event, allowing the eager crowd to line up to the mounds of goodies, to fill their plates and cups, and enjoy a pleasant hour with friends at the tea tables.

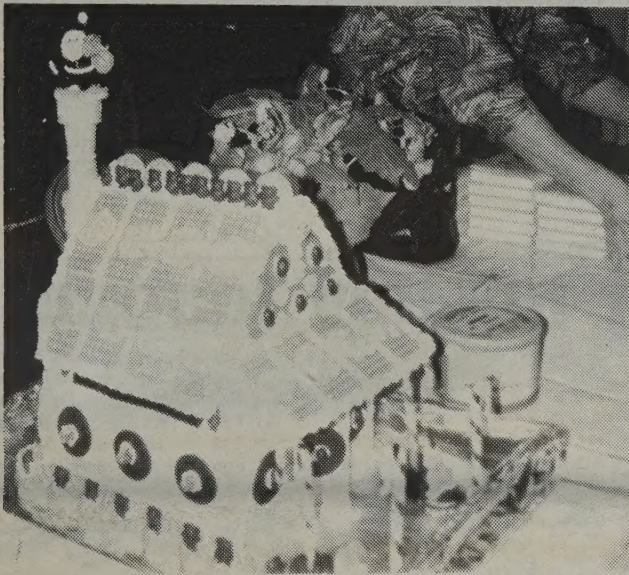

At the end of the busy afternoon, Bea Williams had won the candy jar, with her nearest-correct guess, while the masterfully constructed Cookie House was won by Mike O'Neill, probably to the eternal delight of his children.

UCW Acting Chairperson Muriel Holthe, was in evidence, busy around the kitchen, while other members manned (or should that be 'womaned'?) the sink, tea-tables and worked behind the tables. Around a dozen ladies do the planning and work, in this very worth-while effort, with input from many more church members and others. The UCW are very grateful for this assistance and sincerely thank all who helped in any way in this concerted effort, as well as all who attended and support this event.

The next major group effort in the church and hall will be the Cantata, coming up on December 17, 7 p.m. Watch for information on this always enjoyable event.

In speaking to Mrs. Miller later, she reminded me that one of the UCW's continuing projects is the collection of used eyeglasses, as these may be re-polished and used by those unable to afford to buy them, also the frames are reusable. Why not clear out your old glasses and hand them to the UCW, who will send them off to the gathering centre?

Cookie Castle...

This ornate and festively decorated structure was built entirely from cookies of various kinds, with candy trimmings, by Billie Milholland. Visitors to the United Church Bazaar guessed how many of the confections went into the building project.

FIRE SAFETY

A dry Christmas tree is a fire hazard. Keep it in water.

Alberta LABOUR Fire Prevention Branch

USC short of target

Canada has an enviable international record as a friend of poor and oppressed people. Since 1968, when the international commission headed by our former Prime Minister, the Hon. Lester Pearson, issued its report "Partners in Development", Canada has been a leader in development assistance for Third World countries.

The Unitarian Service Committee, under the inspired leadership of its founder, Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, was a key player in helping to build Canada's reputation. Along with other prominent Canadian voluntary organizations, USC Canada helped Canadians channel their concern for the world's poor into practical, effective and well-managed people to people programs.

1989 marks a significant turnaround in our government's attitude and commitment. Despite ample evidence that Canadians are as caring as ever about the massive poverty and human suffering in our world, our government slashed our development assistance budget by 23 percent. Support for USC Canada's programs was cut by $350,000. The USC is having to appeal with new trust and confidence to the generosity of the Canadian people.

As we approach the Christmas season, USC Canada is still $500,000 short of its $1.5 million public fundraising target this year. These are dollars that translate into life for thousands of children. For USC, budget cuts are not measured only in dollars and percentages, but in literate parents, healthy children and lower infant mortality rates for our African and Asian partners.

In this, our traditional season of gift-giving, USC Canada once again appeals to the generous Canadian public. Please send contributions to 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa, Ontario K1P 5B1.

New events at Winter Games

The 1990 North Eastern Alberta Winter Games will feature five (5) new sporting events for the weekend of February 2nd - 4th in Wainwright. These events are all North Eastern Alberta Host Sport Events and the winners will not advance to the Alberta Winter Games in Camrose. The new events are: 1) Floor Hockey - 18 or older, males; 2) Broomball - 18 or older, males; 3) Darts - 18 or older, open doubles and singles; 4) Racquetball - 18 or older, males and females singles; 5) Cross Country Skiing - 9-12, boys and girls jackrabbit.

These events are added in order to increase the participational opportunities for all people at the games and to provide for a weekend of fun and recreation for the whole family. Please contact your local Regional Recreation Director for information on how to register or contact the Wainwright Games Office at 842-5707. Participants are encouraged to sign up quickly as the registration deadlines are fast approaching.

Children's Christmas Fire Safety Contest

Enter the contest and learn more about Christmas fire safety in the home. We've included five fire hazards and three fire safety items in the poster. Color the poster and then circle the fire hazards and safety items. You can ask an adult to help you find the hazards and the safety items, but please color the poster yourself.

If you're 10 years or under and live in Alberta you can enter. (Children of Alberta Labour employees are not eligible.) Winners will be selected from three age groups: 4 years and under; 5 to 7 years; and 8 to 10 years. In each age group first prize is $50.00; second prize is $30.00; and third prize is $20.00.

United Church Choir cantata

The United Church Choir is offering its Christmas Cantata, on December 17th, the last Sunday before Christmas Eve, at 7:30 p.m., in the church. Directed by Debbie Lou Huskins, who is also pianist, the twenty adult voices will offer "The Spirit of Christmas", a program of songs, old and new, and will include solos, a duet, and quartet, as well as one child's offering.

Narration will be by Joe Brunner. Opening with Rev. Sam Donaldson, and some congregational participation, the choral program will be followed with refreshments served in the adjoining United Church hall.

The Choir will be traveling to Glendon in the morning of that same day, performing their program at 12 noon in the Glendon Church. Everyone is welcome to attend these Christmas musical Cantatas.

Farm safety contest winner

ELK POINT - Lynette Street of Tully Lake will be recognized for her winning entry to A Child's Guide to Farm Safety at an awards ceremony, 9 a.m., December 13, 1989 at the Tully Lake School. Lynette's drawing was chosen from more than 1000 entries from school children across Alberta.

Sponsored annually by Alberta Power Limited and TransAlta Utilities in cooperation with Alberta Agriculture, A Child's Guide to Farm Safety teaches school kids about farm safety through colorful drawings, puzzles and stories created by children. The book contains important messages about how to avoid accidents and stay safe on the farm.

"With safety a top priority for Alberta Power Limited, we believe it's important to promote the safety message, especially to children," says Dan VanKeeken, community relations supervisor, Alberta Power Limited.

School teachers across the province also see the benefits of promoting farm safety to children and the numerous requests for the guide reflect the program's growing popularity. Close to 50,000 requests for the guide were received from teachers in 1988.

The guides are distributed annually to Alberta schools and teachers can work the material into their regular curriculum. When the teacher has finished reviewing the book with his or her class, the students are encouraged to draw pictures or write stories that explain a farm safety message. They can also work together on a poster that illustrates various farm safety tips. The stories, pictures and posters are then submitted to Alberta Agriculture and the best ones are selected for publication in the next edition of A Child's Guide to Farm Safety.

One And Two And...

Bernie Kozicky instructs Charlotte Lazicki in the fine points of cardiopulmonary resuscitation as part of the CALM 20 course at F. G. Miller High School.

Opening The Airways

Joanne Hutton demonstrates, with the use of a wooden cutout model of the respiratory system, how to open the patient's airways by tipping their head back.

Ready For Recovery...

Angie Lesyk expertly flips a 'resuscitated victim' from the CALM 20 class into the Recovery Position, the final step taught to students in the Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation session.

Students learn life skills

Students graduating from high school in Alberta in the 1989-90 school year and any year thereafter will have a new requirement on the list of courses necessary to obtain a diploma. Career and Life Management 20, commonly known as CALM, has been added to the curriculum to ensure that graduates are not only educated academically but are prepared to deal with real life experiences.

F. G. Miller High School's CALM 20 instructor, Cheri Lindquist, feels that 'to me, this is one of the most important courses high school students will take.'

The course is divided into six segments. The first deals with Self Management, and the students ask themselves 'who am I? What do I feel about myself? How well do I communicate with others?' and explore their dreams, goals and interests, and direct these toward choosing a path to follow in life.

Physical, mental and emotional well-being is the topic of the second section, which explores nutrition and exercise, and suggests the elimination of smoking, alcohol and drug abuse for a healthy lifestyle.

Relationships, and getting along with parents, siblings and friends, are studied in the third section, which later discusses relationships in dating situations, in the work force, and in finding a partner in life.

The World of Work explores career options and planning for entering the work force.

Independent Living helps to prepare the students for living on their own, with budgeting, setting up an apartment, consumer shopping, a Lady Beware session with the RCMP, and lessons on cardiopulmonary resuscitation included in the session.

The final part of the course deals with sexuality, adolescent relationships, adolescent pregnancy and parenting, pregnancy prevention and sexually transmitted diseases.

Mrs. Lindquist notes that while the students 'may feel they don't need this now, down the road they will find they have learned something worthwhile.'

Last week, the students in the 3-credit, one semester course were learning CPR, under the guidance of Diana Anderson, Bernie Kozicky, Joanne Hutton and Angie Lesyk. Earlier in the course, the students served Thanksgiving dinner to a group of parents and school staff. In upcoming weeks, they will shop for groceries for the Santas Anonymous hampers, and study consumer shopping with St. Paul Co-op's consumer consultant, learn basic mechanical skills such as changing a tire or changing the oil in a vehicle, discuss what to buy for one's first kitchen, and even learn to sort laundry. These are skills that the average adult takes for granted, but skills that one's children do not necessarily learn by being in a parent's household, and could easily go out into the world wondering how to do, but not wanting to seem immature by asking a parent for help.

'If they each learn one thing in this class,' Mrs. Lindquist said, 'I will feel I have done something valuable.'

Seniors plan Christmas party

By Irene Magnusson

The November 14 meeting of the Pioneer Circle Board of Directors was well attended, with 15 of the 18 Board Members present, plus the executive and some guests.

Secretary Grace Barwich read the minutes, following call to order by president Mike Palinka. These were accepted. A report from the Building Committee, by Phyllis Zarowny, was heard, together with a few recommendations, following the treasurer's statement. Some shifting of funds has been done, to put things in their proper niches, according to suggestions from last meeting. Particular reference was made to a $4500 grant received, which must be kept separate from other funds, until used.

The Monday night Bingos are going well and making money, however the Wednesday Bingos were not doing so well. Moreover, an error was made in sending the renewal request in, so Wednesday Bingos were cancelled for a few sessions, these to be replaced by card games, until the permit is renewed.

Some reports on the new Challenge Trophy were offered; this will remain with the winners for a period of three weeks, then must be put on the line if any other senior club challenges the holders. Elk Point had possession of it lately. A challenge for the trophy was received from Mallaig, and was to be met on Nov. 17th, in Floor Curling.

The Alberta Senior Winter Games will be held at Wainwright, February 3 and 4, 1990, while the Winter Games will take place in Hinton (date to be announced). Morris Cooper stated that members should now expect to pay a fee of $10, up from the previous $5, as this was felt to be too little. This is under consideration.

The new ruling of "No Games in Hall During any Meeting" was gratefully accepted by those in attendance, as the interference has been most disconcerting.

A vote was held then, among those eligible, for a new Area Sports Coordinator. Two names were put forward, Lillian Palinka and John Williams, with Mrs. Palinka getting the nod. She will attend meetings for the group, now that Morris Cooper has resigned. Sid Holthe supervised the voting.

The group then got down to the serious business of planning the Christmas Party, the decision being to have a catered supper, on December 9, commencing at 5:30 p.m. This will include members only, as the facility is considered too small to host the general public. Committees were formed, or revived, and a motion passed to refurbish the Christmas decorations to the tune of $50 to $75 as the old ones were in a disintegrating state.

A.C.A. Director for Area 1, Region 2, Irene Magnusson, left a quantity of information material, regarding housing for seniors - the Government assistance available for both owners and renters.

Grain growers hold 83rd annual meeting

Members of United Grain Growers from St. Paul, Elk Point and surrounding areas gathered in St. Paul last Wednesday evening for their 1989 Annual Meeting, and heard reports on UGG's 83rd annual convention and on the elevator system in general.

Territorial Manager Doug Service, Elk Point's convention delegate Ray Danyluk, and guest speaker Roy Piper of Elrose, Saskatchewan were introduced by Bernie O'Neill, Chairman of the St. Paul Local and MC for the evening. He also introduced St. Paul elevator manager Dale Fodness and his wife Maxine, Elk Point elevator manager Bernie Korpan, St. Paul Local Secretary Florence Labant, Elk Point Local Chairman Steve Senjuk and Secretary John Zayonce.

Ray Danyluk gave a comprehensive report on the convention, which was attended by 247 of the UGG's 259 delegates. With the five month closing of the Vancouver terminal for upgrading and the widespread drought, UGG suffered their 'first substantial loss since the 'thirties' in 1988, Danyluk said. The net loss was in the vicinity of $5.2 million for the company, which totals its assets at $376 million. Only one new elevator was constructed, giving the company a total of 281, with 98 of these in Alberta. United Oilseeds ceased operations, due to low crusher prices, during 1988.

With the terminal renovations complete, UGG is looking toward updating their elevators, with a goal of putting more 80,000 bushel high-throughput elevators on stream, equipped with facilities to load a railway hopper car in 8 minutes.

Vancouver's improvements have substantially increased the number of cars which can be unloaded and the tonnes of grain which can be cleaned per shift, and also increased railway siding trackage by 25 percent. Danyluk noted that the increased speed of handling should increase profits.

The Prince Rupert terminal receipts were down over $8 million from the previous year, and concern was expressed that the debt total on that facility is rising, due to interest, faster than it can be paid off.

New seed varieties available through UGG include a high yielding Argentinian Delta Canola, plump Derby Oats for milling and race horse feed, and a winter hardy Timothy hay.

UGG has sold their pet food division and will focus on more profitable elements of the feed industry, Danyluk said. Custom cattle feeding proved profitable, thanks to the tripartite stabilization, with 95 percent of the cattle leaving the UGG feedlot grading A1.

Publishing and printing also led to lost revenue for UGG, but their printing division has been downsized and a management group created to make this a more viable operation. Advertising has increased in recent months, and the division is currently operating at a profit. The big concern in the publishing area, Danyluk said, is that the farm population is decreasing, leading to a decrease in subscribers.

Danyluk spoke on the development of a marketing merger to enhance export opportunities, which could result in being Canada's biggest grain and oil exporter by the year 2000, and commented 'I think it's going to work.'

He also summarized the resolutions put forward at the convention, which ranged from increased local grants, to payment on delivery for malting barley, to support for an acreage based quota system, to opposition to the General Sales Tax. The UGG agreed to lobby for an interest-free cash advance program, which Danyluk said 'numbers and phone calls will help with.' He urged farmers to call Donald McDonald at 1-613-995-9133 to voice their support of this.

and to hold the 1991 convention in Vancouver were defeated, while resolutions to ask agricultural chemical companies to stop advertising in prime time to general audiences and to concentrate on media aimed at the farm population, and to support a move to charge costs incurred by strikes to the union involved rather than to the farmers, were passed.

Danyluk reported briefly on the ladies' program at the convention, which his wife had attended. She had found the events well organized, but felt that many of the activities were not farm orientated. She suggested that the farm women not be treated as someone to be entertained, because 'they're there to learn.'

Roy Piper, UGG delegate from Elrose, Saskatchewan and a wheat and pulse crop producer from near the US border, was the guest speaker, nattily attired in a Saskatchewan Roughriders jersey and gloating about the 'new order' of things since the previous Sunday's Grey Cup win.

'We can have whatever kind of system we want,' he told his fellow UGG members, referring to both elevators and grain transportation. 'But we'll have to pay for it.'

Piper said that while there were a total of 5700 grain elevators in 1934, there are 1666 units in operation today, resulting in larger grain gathering areas. Six times as much grain is delivered currently as went into the elevators in 1934. Alberta dropped from 582 to 310 delivery stations in the past 30 years.

Deliveries to UGG elevators have changed only minimally over the past twelve years, Piper said, but the cost of handling each of the 3.8 million tonnes has risen from $7.93 in 1977 to $13.40 today.

Elevators handle between 2000 and 63,000 tonnes per year, averaging 16,000 tonnes, and a point would have to handle at least 30,000 tonnes to justify building a new elevator. Any elevator operating under the 10,000 tonne level 'is in jeopardy,' Piper said.

He outlined the cost of building a wooden elevator of various sizes, ranging from $812,000 for a 50,000 bushel unit to almost $1.4 million for a 190,000 bushel unit. An annex costs out at $2 to $3 per bushel for steel construction or $5 to $6 per bushel for wood. A track loading facility costs from $250,000 to $500,000, a major from $400,000 to $600,000, a high-throughput from $1 to $1.8 million, and an inland terminal $50 million or more.

'Would you be willing to pay for a new elevator?' he queried the members present.

Piper was questioned regarding a resolution on notice of closures and trades with other companies, which will give members of a local a year's notice of such action. He feels that this 'could be detrimental to a businesslike approach,' and cautioned that 'trades don't always go through as planned.'

St. Paul elevator manager Dale Fodness suggested that producers be asked if they would pay an extra tariff to keep marginal points open, to which Ray Danyluk replied he would 'be ready for variable handling costs as soon as our fertilizer price is more in line with the price in southern points.'

Maxine Fodness was the winner of the door prize draw.

Historical Society is set for a new decade

Elk Point Historical Society, the dedicated group who makes sure that our past is preserved, took a look into the future last week, as they began planning for 1990's tourist traffic and 1992's Fort George - Buckingham House Bicentennial celebrations.

Those who come to Elk Point next year will find brochures to guide their viewing of the Historical Mural, and pins and spoons related to both the mural and the forts to purchase as a souvenir of their visit. Prototypes and prices for the brochures will be available by the next meeting, while more pins and the first souvenir spoons commemorating the mural and forts will be ordered shortly.

The first tourists of the new decade may also find a new attraction in town, thanks to the Tourism Action Plan's Adopt-A-Hydrant Program. The Historical Society decided to become one of the groups to officially adopt one of Elk Point's 58 fire hydrants, and to decorate it to resemble a historic character. A hydrant near the mural is the Society's choice, and will probably become a voyageur of the fur trading days.

Development of the mural park was discussed, with a special meeting set for mid-December to discuss the Mural Park Development Agreement, which has been received from the Town of Elk Point. A $5000 grant has been approved by Alberta Recreation, Parks and Wildlife, while an additional $20,000 grant has been applied for from the TAP funding. Corporate funding is also being looked into, for development of the site.

The Society's Bicentennial Committee will be approaching Elk Point area groups to determine what involvement they would like to have in the 1992 events.

Also on the subject of the Forts, Sid Holthe reported on the Fort George-Buckingham House Advisory Committee's meeting with Minister of Culture Doug Main, Minister of Tourism Don Sparrow, Minister of Agriculture Ernie Isley and MLA John Drobot. Holthe said that Main indicated that funding for the forts' reconstruction 'might not be too difficult' to obtain, but that thought must be given to how to make the development self-supporting once it was in place, possibly through the involvement of the private sector.

The yearly business of forming a nominating committee was brought forward, but it proved easier to get volunteers for a new executive than for a nominating committee. The 1990 President will be Larry Demchuk, moving up from Vice President, while Mike O'Neill volunteered to be 1990 Vice President. Gail Kozicky volunteered to stay on as Secretary, while Ray Hellquist, who took over the post of Treasurer part way through 1989, will be asked if he would also like to continue in this capacity.

The passing of a long time member of the Historical Society, Bea Sumpston, will be marked by the Society by the sponsorship of the dedication page in the 1989-90 F. G. Miller High School Year Book, members agreed.

Hospital Auxiliary

Last meeting of 1989

By Irene Magnusson

A very good turn-out of members arrived early for the November 27 meeting/Christmas party of the Elk Point Hospital Auxiliary. The 'early' reason had to do with a quantity of cleaning rags the group prepared, trimming and folding, ready for sale, before the regular deliberations took place.

Following minutes and Canteen reports, the Financial status was reviewed, with the conclusion the group would purchase around $2500 in equipment for the hospital patients' use. It was agreed to learn the precise costs of the items required before going ahead with ordering.

Hughie Krucik displayed the tray favors she had created for distribution to residents and patients in Extended Care and wards, these were admired and a vote of thanks offered to Hughie.

Correspondence was dealt with; a decision to "Adopt a Hydrant" made, and the proposed name-plaque to be put on major gifts to the hospital was viewed. Other correspondence was discussed. No volunteers offered to go to the Auxilliaries Conference in February, in Edmonton.

The date of the Christmas dinner with the Board was agreed on, as December 12, at 6 p.m., at the Empress Cafe.

In place of the usual exchange of gifts, the group had agreed to donate $5 each toward a gift for the Pediatrics ward. A total of $70 was collected, and with it a walker will be purchased, before Christmas.

Adella Jennison displayed the stuffed animals obtained through UPC clipping, and suggested other benefits. A delicious Christmassy lunch was enjoyed by all, courtesy of the Staff, as the group closed the meetings for another year. The next gathering will be January 22, 1990.

Heinsburg 4-H multi club

By Darren Skolarchuk

The Heinsburg 4-H Multi-Club held an organizational meeting in October. We have eleven members this year, with six in the Beef Project, with Walter Skolarchuk as their leader. The other members are in the craft Project with Elsa Sanders as their leader.

The November meeting was held at the Heinsburg Community School and at this time election of Club Officers was held. The positions were filled as follows: President - Lily Thomson; Vice Pres. - Rosalie Bristow; Secretary - David Skolarchuk;

Treasurer - Kirsten Sanders; Club Reporter - Darren Skolarchuk; Club Historian - Jamie Bristow.

There was much discussion at this meeting regarding activities the group wants to participate in this year. We will be a busy group if we accomplish all these goals.

Our Christmas Party will be a pot-luck supper on Dec. 21, 1989 at the Heinsburg Community School following our annual carolling to the seniors' in the rural Heinsburg area.

The next meeting will be at the Heinsburg Community School on Dec. 18, 1989 at 7:00 p.m.

Scotts celebrate 50th anniversary

By Mildred Dunham

A celebration party was held Sept 16th in Spring Park hall in honour of Vic and Dora Scott's 50th anniversary. Along with their four children and their families, friends and relatives from B.C. (who only come for such occasions), the people of Spring Park and surrounding areas will long remember these festivities.

Vic came to Spring Park with his parents as a young lad where he met and married Dora Cinnamon, a young girl from the area. The first time Vic took Dora on a date was when he walked her home from a box social held at the school. Shortly after, Vic went to work at Turner Valley and Dora at Edmonton. They wrote letters to each other and in the summer of 1939 they met in Edmonton to watch the King and Queen in the parade. They both came back to Spring Park on the train and decided to get married in the fall.

After the wedding Vic built a cabin (10' x 16') six miles north of their present home. He had a sawmill there and Dora was the cook. Then he tore it down and rebuilt it on a piece of land he acquired through a 99 year agricultural loan. He broke up about fifty acres and got a few cows but the road into it was muskeg and bush so again he gave up and went to Yellowknife in search of fortune. When he returned, he found he had lost his land because of not living there. He bought his present home in 1948, bush and a little clearing as big as a garden patch. Vic and his Dad got a job inside painting the seven new houses built at the townsite of the new Salt Plant at Lindbergh. He drove a model A 1928 Ford, which was the only car on the road at that time. He managed to go to work even when it was fifty below. He built his own shack evenings and weekends. Then, for about five years, he worked for Frank Kietges, driving tractor and breaking land. Later, he did a little carpenter work; built the garage for Henry Lorensen which is now Young's Gasland, Joe Alber's house in Primrose in 1959. Then he went to work on the grader; he only had about 450 miles of road to maintain as there were only five graders in the St. Paul County.

In 1960, he bought a few milk cows from the neighbors and sold cream. He built cabinets for the neighbors in his spare time. In 1974, Bob Smith phoned to see if Vic would go on the grader. Dora fondly told him there was nothing like an old fool, but Vic lasted on that job for ten years. He was on night shift the whole time, even a year after he got his pension. Vic and Dora still remain active, keeping house and even picking rocks. They wish to thank their many friends that came to the anniversary party and helped to make it such a success. It was an occasion they will long remember and cherish.
